USSR INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS
Aug. 16, 1960

In the light of the events which took place in connection with the espionage expeditions by the U.S. U-2 and RB-47 planes over USSR territory, the declaration which the Norwegian generals issued to the effect that "any plane in distress is entitled to land at Norwegian airports" looks very (ill-advised?), cynical, and challenging. (Few words indistinct) instead of rendering harmless, interning, and isolating the air bandit from the rest of the community in the event he had to land on Norwegian territory, the Norwegian generals, who obviously obey instructions from their government, intend under the camouflage of love of humanity, to do nothing less than help him.

Therefore any air spy, provocation, or aggressor could rely on (extensive?) assistance from Norwegian authorities, in the form of contributions to the organization of (word indistinct) for his crew and preparations of new adventures in USSR airspace.

Surely it is not this kind of humanitarian assistance which the Norwegian Government and generals intend to render to the U.S. planes which fly the European route carrying atomic bombs? There is only one way out of the very unenviable position in which the Norwegian rulers have found themselves and that is to stop participating in the Pentagon's sinister deeds. This corresponds with Norway's national interests and the interests of international peace.

U.S. TOTAL ESPIONAGE DOCTRINE DETAILED

Moscow, in Spanish to the Caribbean, Aug. 14, 1960, 0200 GMT--W

(Text) The arsenal of U.S. imperialism makes use of every type of doctrine. Now, one more--the doctrine of total espionage of Herter and Eisenhower--has been added. Up to now the U.S. Department of State has avoided using this doctrine publicly. Now, after the pirate flight of the U-2 over Soviet territory, President Eisenhower has told the world that espionage is a policy which is taken into account by the United States. One of the U.S. militarists, (James Bergen?), in his book "The Strategy of the Cold War," writes that "the United States is concentrating all its forces on elaborating a war plan against the Soviet Union and all its allies."

U.S. total espionage is a method of preparation to unleash (aggression?). The United States spares no efforts to organize espionage. When Hitler prepared for war, he spent approximately four times more on espionage than the intelligence services of France and Britain spent together.
